ORM

Operational Risk Management (ORM)

Adopts the underlying principle that employers' legal duties as envisaged in terms of section 8 of the Occupational Health and Safety Act, 85 of 1993 is met when training and development improves individual and organizational performance and assists in achieving the businesses mission and performance goals.

Training people is helpful for a short time, developing people is helpful for a lifetime. And while the result of training is changed performance, the result of development is changed

Employee training is a necessity for any business that wants to remain competitive in today's marketplace. But leaders who want to make a lasting difference also recognize that training by itself is not enough. Training people is helpful for a short time, developing people is helpful for a lifetime. And while the result of training is changed performance, the result of development is changed lives."

The Art of Leadership Learning

LEADERSHIP TRAINING:
BUILDING SAFER,
SMARTER, STRONGER
PROFESSIONALS

John Maxwell stated that "When we train people, we focus on the job. When we develop people, we focus on the person. When we train people, we're adding value to specific things, such as what their Job description is. When we develop people, we add value to everything. They not only become better

By Thamie Bhengu - Training and Client Partnership Manager

Leadership training plays an important role in developing professionals who can think beyond their daily tasks and understand the bigger picture. It broadens the mind, strengthens decision-making, and helps individuals positively influence others in the workplace

At ORM Training, we focus on preparing our students to become safety leaders in the marketplace. We believe in adding value in everything we do by equipping our learners with the knowledge and mindset needed to create safer work environments.

Our goal is simple: to empower students with safer, smarter, and stronger skills so they can lead with confidence and make a positive impact in their industries
